“With the ubiquity of broadband and the breadth of available content – combined with the time difference between the U.S. and Beijing – this truly is the first online video Olympics,” commented Jon Gibs, vice president, media analytics, Nielsen Online. “With the unique audience to NBC’s Olympics video section doubling from August 8th to August 9th, and overall traffic to NBC

Olympics growing by 50 percent, it will be interesting to track video usage trends throughout the games.”
